Local Exhibition Largest In North

With the President and Secretary working might and main, and all the directors ably assisting their efforts, the 1928 Fair and Exhibition promises to be the biggest ever pulled off in any town in the north of the province.

Since the issue of the prize list, Secretary Bill Stuart has been literally besieged with notices of entries and the exhibits are all to be on the record side, too!

This year will see one of the finest layouts the local fair grounds have ever seen. The accommodation for exhibiting the exhibit, etc., display is being doubled, a new building being built for this in duplicate of the one erected last year.

Stock sheds are being built which will give ample room for most of the stock exhibits under cover. These will be over 200 feet in length.

The society have made all arrangements with the LeClair Amusement Co. whereby these fun providers will have three main shows in addition to 15 sides shows. They also have Ferris wheel, The Whip, Merry-go-round, and other attractions for the pleasure seeker, and altogether the 1928 Fair and Exhibition will be one to be long remembered.

Make your arrangements NOW to spend August 7th and 8th at the fair. Get together all the material which you wish to exhibit and make your neighbor "step lively" to beat you for the many and valuable prizes which are to be distributed by the judges.

Wainwright's 1928 Fair promises to be such an one as will be the forerunner of a renewed interest in agricultural shows in this territory and all the world and his wife will be there.

Don't forget, also, that every machine and implement (including the new combines) will be on view in no time.

Mr C. Henderson, accompanied by W. Sutherland and Miss Lendrum motored down from the city on Monday and returned accompanied by his daughter Miss Ella Henderson for a holiday.

ALBERTA NOW SHOWS MOST FAVORABLY

CROP CONDITIONS BETTER
HERE THAN IN THE OTHER
PRAIRIE PROVINCES

Below will be found a brief synopsis of telegraphic reports received at the Head Office of the Bank of Montreal with regard to conditions during the past ten days:-

General. Consistently good weather conditions, with absence of any important danger from pests or other causes, continue to make the crop outlook in the Prairie Provinces highly favourable. Growth is rapid; wheat in places is beginning to head out, and over large areas all grain are ahead of average at this period. Satisfactory conditions also prevail in the other Provinces. In Quebec warm weather and heavy rains are causing rapid growth in all crops, and the outlook is encouraging. In Ontario, ideal weather has prevailed during the past week, and all crops are making excellent progress. Similar conditions prevail in the Maritime Provinces. In British Columbia rain has caused some damage to hay and fruit but pasturage is excellent, and roots and grains promise a yield above the average. Details follow:-

Prairie Provinces
Alberta. Western and Northeastern Areas: There has been abundant moisture and crops are doing very well. Warm weather is now required. South eastern Area. Conditions are very favourable, and there has been plenty of moisture. Saskatchewan. Northern Area: Crops are growing rapidly; wheat is mostly in short blade and is commencing to head out. Southern Area: Grains continue to make favourable progress in good growing weather. Some wheat is headed out. Local hailstorms are reported in a few localities, but the damage generally is not important.

We learn that Mr J. Ledue, who has been in the hospital in the city for some time is now better and will return shortly.

Mr and Mrs W. Gano and Mr and Mrs A. Sharp motored to the Edmonton exhibition this week.

HARGAL OILS LTD. BUSY IN FIELD

WILL DEEPEN B.P. No. 4 AND DRILL SECOND WELL
SAYS H. MORRIS

Drilling of at least one new well in the programme of the Hargal Oils Ltd., according to Mr Harry Morris, secretary of the company, who was visiting here from the coast last week. Although deepening of No. 4 B.P. well at Wainwright is to be started at once, he could not say just where the location will be a very suitable site will be selected.

Testing of the structure will also be undertaken, the intention being to core down to depths of 500 to 600 feet. This work will be of an extensive nature, and of value in providing geological information concerning the field.

NATIONAL RAILWAYS NEW LAND POLICY

INCREASES SETTLEMENT ON FARM LAND DURING PAST
SIX MONTHS

WINNIPEG, Man.—During the first six months of this year Canadian National Railways have through their land settlement association, placed 1,336 farming families on 243,272 acres of land along the lines of the company between the Great Lakes and the Pacific Coast, according to J. S. McGowan, Western Manager of the Colonization Department, and F. J. Freer, Superintendent of Land Settlement for the company. The figures represent a substantial increase over the corresponding period of 1927.

The type of settlers has been chiefly British, American and Northern European stock. Under the land settlement plan of the Canadian National Railways, it has been necessary for them to bring sufficient capital to enable them to make a start on farms of their own and the amount of such capital brought in by these people this year is estimated to be approximately a million dollars. Settlement has taken place principally in the less developed districts in the northern parts of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta where the land can either be homesteaded or where partially improved farms can be had on easy terms.

Statistics for the present year show an increase of more than 2,000,000 acres sown to field crops. This increase is due to the large amount of new land placed under cultivation last year and to the stimulus supplied by new land settlement.

Miss Vera Walton has accepted a position in the Bank of Montreal at Provost.

DUPRE INSTALS WASH AND OILING RACK

MODERN GARAGE ADDS SERVICE
AVAILABLE TO GENERAL PUBLIC

Another improvement has been added to the service for motorists and tourists which is obtainable in Wainwright, this being a new wash and oiling rack built alongside of the new Dupre garage on Second avenue.

Arrangements are being made to have the whole of this block laid with new cement sidewalk, with drive way front for the garage premises and in this way, the new facilities should be taken good advantage of and prove a source of comfort to many.

In addition to the above improvement, Mr Thos. Blason is erecting a new two-storey store front in his implement agency premises adjoining, which will give him needed business space.

Still another deal of local interest this week, is the purchase by Mr Harold Brunker of the Brunker Service Station on Main Street, of the lot adjoining his present property. We learn it is his intention to commence practically at once on a building which will provide him with twice the amount of floor space and the erection will be for showrooms offices etc., which will be a credit to the town.

ESTRAY HORSES FROM ROUNDDUPS TO BE SOLD

A number of stray horses have been taken in roundups in the southern part of the province, and unless claimed by their owners will be offered for sale on the dates and at the places specified below, it is announced by S. G. Carlyle, livestock commissioner.

FIN. POST QUOTE WAINWELL DIRECTOR

WAINWELL OILS TO BE RE-ORGANISED & SHARES SPLIT
ON 10-1 BASIS

Tests of oil from the new Wainwell producer at Wainwright show the grade to be high, running from 19 to 20 degrees Beaume, according to state agents by P. D. Bowen, managing director, and reported in an interview with the Financial Post, Toronto. The tests were made up government analysis.

Mr Bowen also announced that a meeting of the shareholders of the Wainwell Oils Limited has been called to consider a plan of reorganization recently approved by the directors. The present capitalization is 300,000 shares of no par value. The proposed plan is to split the stock ten for one and increase the number of shares from 300,000 to 3,000,000 of no par value. Shareholders will therefore receive ten new shares for each old one held. The present market in the stock at Toronto is $2 to $2.50 while the company also plans to list shares in the near future.

"While we are waiting for tanks and equipment to take care of our producing well, we will not be idle" Mr Bowen stated, according to the Post. "We have about $140,000 in the treasury and drilling of our No 2 will be commenced at once."

Mr W. E. Simpson of Van Allen & Simpson, Edmonton barristers, who in former years was a resident and practicing in Wainwright, last week completed what will be the largest land deal ever consummated in Northern Alberta.

In commenting upon the affair, the Edmonton Journal of Saturday last says:-

Over 10,000 acres of choice farming land in the Wainwright district have been purchased by the Mid-West Development & Finance Corporation Limited at a price of around $200,000. It was definitely announced on Saturday morning by W. E. Simpson of Van Allen, Simpson and Company, solicitor and attorney for Emil E. Meyer who was the former owner and is now a resident of Spokane, Wash., and A. Whyte & Company agents for the purchaser that the big deal has now been closed.

For some time past negotiations respecting the sale of these lands have been carried on by Mr Simpson and Whyte & Company acting on behalf of their respective principals. In the opinion of Mr Whyte, and P. B. Barger, of Whyte & Company this land is most desirable for immediate settlement, there being 3,000 acres under cultivation while there are other improvements. The land is now laid out in about twenty units which are being rented by progressive farmers.

The property is situated in one of the choicest districts of central Alberta, a section that has an enviable record for good crops. This district is well settled and enjoys good roads, good schools, telephone service and other modern conveniences.

The original tract of land of which this is a portion was purchased by Mr Meyer in 1918, when it was merely raw land, without improvements. Under the personal supervision of Mr Meyer, who has had a wealth of experience with farm lands in various parts of Alberta and in several of the western states, this district has progressed and developed into one of the most successful areas in Alberta, the home of many prosperous and contented farmers.

Mr Bowen also announced that a meeting of the shareholders of the Wainwell Oils Limited has been called to consider a plan of reorganization recently approved by the directors. The present capitalization is 300,000 shares of no par value. The proposed plan is to split the stock ten for one and increase the number of shares from 300,000 to 3,000,000 of no par value. Shareholders will therefore receive ten new shares for each old one held. The present market in the stock at Toronto is $2 to $2.50 while the company also plans to list shares in the near future.

"While we are waiting for tanks and equipment to take care of our producing well, we will not be idle" Mr Bowen stated, according to the Post. "We have about $140,000 in the treasury and drilling of our No 2 will be commenced at once."

Mr Bowen is also reported to have stated that his company has purchased the Klingenberg property, about $5,000 will be expended by the company in putting this plant in working order.

Federal government estimates of the total grain acreage on the prairies this year, issued at Winnipeg, are stated to be as follows by the W. Banford Evans Statistical Service.

Wheat, 22,440,000 acres
Oats, 8,243,000 acres
Barley, 2,830,000 acres
Rye, 605,000 acres
Flax, 442,000 acres

ALBERTA HIGHWAYS TO BE SURFACED WITH OIL

With a view to still further improving the condition of Alberta's main highways and reducing the cost of maintenance, a series of experiments will be conducted on a number of gravelled roads in the province during the next few weeks to test the efficiency of a covering of oil. It is announced by Hon. O. L. McPherson, Minister of Public Works, that a heavy asphaltic oil will be used in surfacing the roads for several miles on the principal highways. Satisfactory results are anticipated from this treatment which has proved highly satisfactory in a number of the eastern provinces.

Health Service

of the
CANADIAN
MEDICAL ASSOCIATION
LIFE EXTENSION

During the past fifty years, fifteen years have been added to the life expectancy of each new-born infant. This has come about chiefly because the scientific knowledge concerning the prevention and treatment of acute infectious diseases has been used.

The acute communicable diseases, such as measles, diphtheria, typhoid fever and scarlet fever, are diseases of early life. It is generally known that they are communicable and dangerous. It is agreed that they should be placed under the control of health authorities and that they are a state responsibility. Other acute infectious diseases, such as the summer diarrhoeas of infants, are being successfully combated.

As a result of modern health work many people live to reach fifty years of age, but those arriving at the age of fifty have not any greater expectancy to life than had those of the same age during the past few decades. In later life, the individual is the victim, not so much of acute diseases but of what are called the chronic degenerative diseases. These latter are the result of the premature wearing out or breaking-down of one or more parts of the body.

In later life also there are infections. These infections are not acute as in early life, but they are chronic. They are dangerous because they are insidious in their origin, hidden and difficult to recognize. They do not destroy life by reason of the damage they do at the point where they exist, but by the damage done to parts distant from this point, through the poison they pour into the blood stream.

Abscessed teeth and infected tonsils are such dangerous foci of infection. Carried for years, with little or no discomfort, they are continually poisoning the blood stream, and sooner or later, they cause damage to the heart, blood vessels, kidneys or other organs.

If human life after fifty is to be prolonged, such foci of infection must be discovered and removed. The Periodic Health Examination offers the most practical means for doing this. Questions concerning Health addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 134 College Street, Toronto, will be answered by letter. Questions as to diagnosis and treatment will not be answered.

Alberta. Western and Northeastern Areas: Conditions very promising; and there is ample moisture for some time. Southeastern Area: Prospects are very promising, and in some cases wheat is heading out. Saskatchewan Northern Area: Crops progressing well in good growing weather; much wheat is in shot blade. Southern Area: Crops continue to make satisfactory headway. Wheat is mostly in shot blade, and some that was seeded early has headed out. Many points throughout the Province report weeds prevalent and troublesome. Manitoba: All grains are making strong growth. Wheat is in shot blade, and the early sown is heading out. Except for excess moisture in some areas and prevalence of weeds, conditions are satisfactory.

A CURELESS STOP

A COSTLY STOP!

WINNIPEG Man.—For stopping his automobile on a highway crossing in the path of an approaching Canadian National Railways freight train just recently cost Laurier Thibodeau of Quebec more than one hundred dollars and costs. Thibodeau was crossing the tracks and noticing the approaching train became curious to know what an engineer would do should he find an automobile parked on the tracks, so he decided to stay and find out. The engineer whistled for the crossing and noticing the automobile parked on the railway tracks applied his emergency brakes. He was successful in stopping his train before striking the car. Immediately the train came to a standstill, Thibodeau drove off laughing but the train crew secured his license number and he was arranged before Judge Lemay, at St. John's Quebec. In the emergency stop, considerable damage was caused. He was severely lectured by Judge Lemay who said he not only endangered his own life, and those of his two companions, but also those of the train crew and the property of the railroad. The only thing which saved him from more severe punishment court informed him was that he was the support of his widowed mother.

To simplify the task of cutting rafters a special square is marked so that the proper angle to give the pitch desired is quickly and accurately obtained. This is accomplished with the aid of numbers on the square which designate the inch rise per foot on the rafter.

Greater speed and accuracy in preparing air maps are anticipated with an aerial camera that has four lenses. It was recently subjected to field tests by army flyers before mapping an area of approximately 2,500 square miles along the east coast of Florida.

JASPER'S BEGINNING

While Jasper Park Lodge and Jasper National Park, Alberta, are numbered among the best known places on the continent today, there was a time when Jasper was only a trading post of the North West Company. That was about 1813. For half a century it was the main support of the trade route across the mountains and an important point for all persons journeying through the Yellowhead and Athabasca passes. This cabin was erected last year on the site of old Jasper House by the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada to mark the spot where this once famous trading post stood.—Photograph by Canadian National Railways.

What Makes a Town?

A prosperous rural population which demands a community centre where may be established business, educational, religious and entertainment facilities. Where these flourish and are active it is safe to surmise that the people of that section realise and appreciate the value to them of such a centre.

What Maintains It?

Towns are largely maintained by the surrounding districts. But the organization, the direction, and to a great measure the upkeep, of the institutions in such towns are in the hands of the business interests, together with those directly and indirectly connected therewith. Without the active business and professional men to supervise and govern these public institutions and undertakings no town could thrive.

Who is Mainly Affected?

Every citizen either in or about a town should be concerned in seeing to it that they do their part in carrying on any good cause which may be promoted, either by financial or active support. Only in this way will any town prosper and develop as it should.

Publicity is Required

In promotion work your local paper takes the leading part. It is ever champion of worthy causes and philanthropic and patriotic undertakings. But to function properly, and fully carry out its natural prerogatives, it must in turn have the financial support of the community it serves. When needing advertising or printed matter always first think of out in many sections of the province and all grains are making splendid growth according to telegraphic reports received by the Department of Agriculture on Friday for the fifth fortnightly crop report of the season. Growing conditions have been ideal since the last report was issued, the entire province having benefited from general rains during the past two weeks. Crops which appeared somewhat patchy owing to the delayed germination reflecting the drought in May are showing a much greater uniformity, and little difficulty is anticipated at harvest time as a result of this situation.

Coarse grains have all been making vigorous growth and a great many fields of oats and barley are in shot blade. All crops have stood much more heavily than was expected during the dry period, with a consequent improvement in the prospect for a heavy yield. A number of districts report that summerfallowing is being temporarily delayed by the unusual amount of moisture in the soil. Conditions have been ideal for breaking and in many localities more land is being brought under cultivation this season than for many years.

Rain has interfered to some extent with haying in the southern part of the province where a very satisfactory crop of alfalfa and sweet clover is being cut. Good progress is being made with the thinning of the sugar beet crop and a good yield is promised from the 6500 acres sown to beets this year.

Crops in the Peace River section of the province are somewhat more advanced than at this date last year and prospects for a very satisfactory yield are reported.

Crop damage has been confined to the effects of hail over very limited areas and is negligible. Practically no injury from insect pests is reported. Pastures have made renewed growth as a result of the rains and livestock is in very satisfactory condition.

DR. R. C. WALLACE NAMED AS UNIVERSITY PRES.

The appointment of Dr. R. C. Wallace, professor of geology at the University of Manitoba, to the presidency of the University of Alberta to succeed Dr. H. M. Tory who recently resigned to become chairman of the National Research Council of Canada has been announced during the past week by Hon. Perren Baker, Minister of Education, in the absence of Premier Brownlee.

Dr. Wallace brings to the position of president not only a high degree of scholarship, but also a wide experience in administrative work outside the field of university activities. During the past few years he has held the post of Commissioner of Mines for the province of Manitoba, and he is also a past president of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy. It is felt that Dr. Wallace's training and experience along geological lines will be of considerable value in connection with many of the problems relating to the development of Alberta's mineral and other resources.

DIPHTHERIA AFFECTS HUMAN HEART

Diphtheria is an acute communicable disease caused by certain bacilli which lives best in the throat of little children. These bacilli form a powerful poison which destroy certain tissues of the body. The tissues most affected are the nerves, the heart and glands, as well as the throat. The effect of this poison or toxin may be temporary or permanent. Eight percent of all diphtheria is cured in ninety-nine percent of cases where antitoxin is used in adequate dosage during the first twenty-four hours of the sore throat stage of the disease. Antitoxin when given to well children will prevent them from contracting diphtheria for a period of from three to six weeks. Toxin-Antitoxin, however will prevent the occurrence of diphtheria for at least five years in all people and this immunity will last for the lifetime of many. Toxin-Antitoxin is administered by a physician in three doses at intervals of one week. One series of three doses is sufficient to immunize eighty percent of all children. Some children who have a very low resisting power against diphtheria will require a second series of three additional doses.

The Schick Test has been devised to determine definitely whether a child is susceptible to diphtheria and would contract it if exposed or whether he is immune. Nearly all children under school age are susceptible after they are over six months of age. All children between the ages of six months and sixteen years should be given one series of toxin-antitoxin. Not less than six months and not more than one year later they should be given the Schick Test. This will tell which of the children need the second series. Toxin-Antitoxin prevents diphtheria. Take your children to your doctor and have them immunized. Make Canada a country safe for children.

"THE DESERT'S TOLL" AN UNUSUAL LOVE STORY

Effective love stories have been staged and screened with all sorts of settings, of course. Love seems to thrive in any location and under any conditions. And that's what makes the world go 'round they tell us.

But there is something particularly interesting about a love story laid in Nature's own back yard—amidst the towering peaks and sandy wastes of the unexplored West.

That's one reason for the immense popularity of "The Desert's Toll" the thrilling love tale being unfolded at the Theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and in which Francis includes Kathleen Key and Tom Santachi. With that triangle, any story would prove absorbing but "The Desert's Toll" is more than that.

MORRIS SABBATICUS

Morris Sabbaticus, or Sunday sick ness, is a disease peculiar to Church goers, and the attack comes on suddenly on Sunday morning. No symptoms are felt on Saturday evening. The patient sleeps well, awakes feeling well, and eats a very hearty breakfast, but about Church time the attack comes on and continues until morning service is over. At dinner times the patient feels easier and makes a good meal. In the afternoon he feels so much better that he can take a walk, talk politics, and read newspapers. Supper is taken with quite relief, but another attack comes on when the bell rings for evening service and he stays at home, retires early to rest, sleeps soundly and wakes up the next morning as well as can be. No further symptoms appear until the following Sunday. The chief peculiarities of Morris Sabbaticus are: Never appears except on Sundays; the symptoms vary but never affect the sleep, meals or pleasure; generally attacks the head of the family; no physician is ever called in.

NEW PLUGS WILL PEP UP YOUR MOTOR

If you have not installed a new set of spark plugs within the last year, or if your present set has gone 10,000 miles, you will make certain of quicker starting and better engine performance during the coming summer if you install a complete set now.

Hundreds of thousands of motorists who installed new spark plugs last year, have enjoyed better service since that time, and every motorist will be better satisfied with the performance of his car if he makes it a regular practice to put in new plugs once a year.

Many people do not understand how new spark plugs improve the running of the motor. The reasons are perfectly simple and easily understood. Power is developed by the rapid combustion and expansion of the burning gas ignited by the spark at the plug points. Increased power and economy result from an intense spark that gives instantaneous ignition, more rapid expansion and complete burning of the gas.

The spark plug must furnish from 600 to 1,500 full intensity, perfectly timed sparks a minute while constantly subjected to terrific heat and hammerlike blows of the compression. Deposits of soot and carbon gradually burned into the surface leakage of current, corrosion gradually sets up an electrical resistance in the electrodes slowly but surely a less intense spark occurs at the point of the plug.

Loss of power and waste gas and oil result from a less intensive spark that causes a lag in both ignition and flame propagation. Only a part of the gas is actually converted into power and much of it passes out of the exhaust, merely wasted.

RURAL SCHOOL SUPERVISION

Supervising in our rural schools today is almost non-existent consisting only of a more or less hurried visit once a year of the inspector and resulting in little more than informing the teacher, school board and the Department of Education in a general way of the strong and weak points of the teacher and the issuance of a report of the inspector. Two visits a year at least was a recommendation adopted at the last convention of the Alberta Teachers' Association. Two inspectorial visits each year may be desirable but this will not and can not begin to meet the supervisory problems of this province: more supervision rather than more inspection
can be effective in raising the general tone and standards of teaching. Supervision demands a visit to many school rooms at least five or six times a year and in some cases even more than that.

A specific example will serve to illustrate the point—one of the county inspectors of New Jersey with approximately 105 schools and a county superintendent and three supervisors, each having 35 schools to visit, which schools are closer together and more accessible than most schools in our rural communities. Here we have experts in the educational field, visiting schools for the sole purpose of improving the quality of the teaching and seeks to tune up the entire service by using the strong teacher; he goes about from school to school with the sole aim of improving the standard of instruction. Supervision is the "follow-up" the continuation, or extension of teacher training institutions into the province where teachers are actually engaged in the practical work.

With the many duties devolving on the inspector of schools as representative of the Department of Education
it becomes impossible almost to really supervise in the sense of improving the quality of instruction. All that can be done during his hurried visits (seldom more and often less than once in twelve months) is to make a few notes drop a hint or two here and there and fill in the forms which comprise his "report".

Although a person at all skilled in the work can tell whether the general tone of the school is good or poor, the inspector's visit becomes almost entirely one of inspection distinct from that of supervision.

of a much higher scale of usefulness
than that of head of the London
Police it may be that the Home Government does not wish to utilize Baron Byng's services in gubernatorial posts because of his alleged faux pas over the constitutional issue, but the people of Canada harbor no ill feeling against him and would gladly see him
serving the Empire in some more ambitious manner than the position he has lately had thrust upon him.

INTERESTING

RED CROSS EXHIBIT

The watchword of the Red Cross in Alberta is Health, Citizenship and Service, and in translating this into action the Headquarters of the Society employs many methods. The teaching of health has necessarily to begin with Mothers of babies in the cradle, and hence to women and girls.
Red Cross gives a great opportunity to learn these lessons of Mothercraft
in the numerous Home-Nursing Classes which are formed all over this province.

Instruction in health also forms
the major portion of the study of the Junior Red Cross in the schools of Alberta, boys and girls "learn by doing" and in the practices of the rules of Health, our young people are laying up for themselves a store of sound
good health which will last them all their lives.

At the Fair in Edmonton there will be shown an unusual model of a Good Health Service Station, illustrating by figures and motor car and mechanical the laws that govern the machinery of the body. Electric Light on the roof of the station proclaim the great health giving agents "Water, Food, Air, Cleanliness, etc." The repairs necessary to the human body must not be overlooked and in the persons of the surgeon and the nurse are the mechanics who examine and test the body to locate troubles and arrest it.

Another model of great interest
will be the New Wing of the University Hospital where the Junior Red Cross patients are undergoing their marvellous cures. Here will be shown at a glance the scene of their beautifully equipped wards with children in all stages of convalescence. Service to the sick children of Alberta must commend itself to every human heart and to partake in the privilege of caring should be the people's pride.

The Crop Report

Early sown wheat is well headed out in most sections of the province and all grains are making splendid growth, according to Hon. George Headley, minister of agriculture, on Saturday morning in discussing the provincial crop outlook.

Growing conditions in the last two weeks, he said, had been ideal, the entire province deriving benefit from the plentiful rains. Crops which appeared somewhat patchy owing to delayed germination reflecting the drouth of May, were showing much better uniformity and it was anticipated that at harvest time little difficulty would be experienced as a result of this situation.

Coarse grains had been making vigorous growth and a great many fields of oats and barley were in the shot blade. All crops had stood more heavily than was expected during the dry period with a consequent improvement in the prospect for a heavy yield. Several districts reported that summer fallowing was being temporarily delayed by the unusual amount of moisture in the soil. Conditions had been ideal for breaking and in many localities more new land was being brought under cultivation this season than for many years.

Rain has interfered to some extent with haying in the southern section of the province, where a satisfactory crop of alfalfa and sweet clover was being cut. Good progress was being made with the thinning of the sugar beet crop and a good yield was promised from the 6,500 acres sown to beets
this year.

Crops in the Peace River country
were more advanced; that at the corresponding period last year and prospects for a bumper yield were bright.
Crop damage had been confined to the effects of hail over limited areas and was practically negligible. Pastures had had renewed growth as a result of recent moisture.

Designed for cross-country service
a three-wheeled motorcycle has been tested in England. There are two men wheels in the rear and the machine has a duplex steering arrangement. The cycle has been proposed especially for military uses.

For greater convenience in carrying a minnow dropper is quickly taken apart when not in use. The hoops are made of staples and the net is shaped to insure a large catch. The outfit is light in weight and rolls up into a very compact bundle.

Golf swings are executed in correct form by a mechanical model which shows the proper position of the arms
and legs at every part of the stroke
and is adjustable for drives or putts and enacts every portion of a real stroke, even to the follow through.

Find Ancient Chinese Drug
Good for Colds

Used by the Chinese for more than 2,000 years as a treatment for colds,
drugs have been found good for colds,
coughs, and for relieving the pressure or arresting bleeding in hemorrhage. These uses are particularly of research conducted with assistance at the university of Wai-chiang. Experiments are under way to mine if the drug is beneficial in any way. According to Dr. Kochi, chemist at the university, the drug is considered superior to salin in raising the blood pressure effects last over a longer period.
Ancient Chinese doctors found that placenta caused muscles around the lungs in the lungs to relax, thus easing better breathing. The same drug has been used with in tests injected with the drug at large clinics
in myanmar and Minnesota.

Which Wheel for New Tire?

To obtain the longest mileage, the two best tires on a car should be placed on the rear wheels. Some drivers assert that the best tires belong on the front to minimize the danger from blowouts and the risk of losing control of the car, but this hazard is considered negligible, and the real fault usually lies in the driver losing his head. The spare should replace the more worn of the rear tires at the end of several thousand miles of driving. On new cars, all tires may remain as originally placed for several thousand miles, then the front ones
should be put on the rear wheels.

Mowing Heavy Grass

When lawnmowers are crowded to cut thick and heavy growths of grass, the stationary cutting bar and supporting roller frequently jump or "buck," leaving unsightly patches of long grass here and there about the lawn. By attaching the spring-and-roller device shown in the drawing, this trouble is readily overcome.
The main leaf from a discarded wagon-wheel spring is bolted to the underside of the mower handle so that the two small wood disks, or wheels, mounted on the free end of the spring, will rest upon the wheel roller of the mower when the handle is pressed down. In ordinary use, the spring plays no part, but when the mower is driven into heavy grass, the handle may be held low enough to bring the rollers in contact, thus holding the rear part of the mower against "bucking."

Sawdust Soaked in Arsenic
to Kill Mosquitoes

Sawdust immersed in a weak solution of water and arsenic and scattered on breeding places from airplanes, is being tried by the United States marine corps
as a means of combating the mosquito.
The method is said not to be injurious to fish, birds or persons, because the possible is absorbed.

Rubber Stamp Attached
to Thimble

In canning factories, cold-storage plants and other places, where numbered and other identification and grading stamps are used, the thimble
drawing will be found very useful.
The small round rubber stamps are removed from the original wooden handles and are mounted on thimbles, the ends of which have been flattened for this purpose.
The stamps are fastened with glue or rubber cement. The operator then provides himself with a pad, strapped to the hand as shown, for inking the stamps. This is made from a cross section of an old inner tube with the ink pad glued to it.
With a little practice he can ink and stamp much more rapidly than in the usual manner, and both hands are practically free to move or turn boxes and cans.

Movies Not Harmful to Eyes

If you can read, write or do other work without straining your eyes, there is no harm
in going to the movies, specialists in eye diseases say. Tests with 150 persons showed that those who suffered eye fatigue after watching a motion-picture film, also became tired when doing other work that affected the vision, so that the movies were not responsible for the trouble.

PLACE NAMES OF ALBERTA

"The Star" is in receipt of an interesting booklet published by the Geographic Board of Canada. It contains as far as possible the origin of the various place-names in the province. Tofield, is listed as having received its name from Dr. Tofield, Ryley, from a former official of the railway, Barde from Barde in Norway while Wainwright commemorates the name of Mr. Wm. Wainwright, 2nd vice-president of the old G. T. P.

The following introduction to the book is interesting reading.

The history of Alberta is summarized in its place names. The names of the province itself recalls the happy auspices under which it came into being. The Marquis of Lorne was Governor General of Canada at the time and the name was given by him as a graceful tribute to his wife, H. R. H. Princess Louise Caroline Alberta, fourth daughter of Queen Victoria.

In token of the love which thou has shown
For this wide land of freedom, I have named
A province vast, and for its beauty dear,
By thy dear name.

There are names which reach back to the days when the buffalo herds swarmed over the prairie and the Indians were monarch of all they surveyed.

There are names which recall the rivalry of fur trading companies in their quest for beaver skins; names which call up visions of the Mounted Police as they rode the plains and enforced law and order; there are names which shed light on the toils and struggles of pioneer settlers, their hopes and aspirations, disappointments and successes.

The place-names of Alberta may be divided conveniently into two groups, those which existed before the coming of the full tide of immigration and those which have originated since that date. The rails of the Canadian Pacific Railway reached the western boundary of Alberta in the autumn of 1883, and as the building of the railway increased the rapidity of settlement—with a consequent multiplicity of new names—this year forms a convenient point of division for the study of the names of the province.

The earlier names are to be found on the maps of Aaron Arrowsmith and his nephew, John Arrowsmith.

The Arrowsmiths enjoyed the confidence of the Hudson's Bay Co. who transferred to them all information respecting discoveries made by officers of the company. The first Arrowsmith map of North America was published in 1785 and was "inscribed by Permission to the Honourable Governor and Company of Adventurers of England. Trading into Hudson Bay. In testimony of their liberal Communications." Numerous editions of this great map were printed, particularly between 1785 and 1825. It was Aaron Arrowsmith, too, who prepared the map to illustrate Sir Alex. Mackenzie's "Voyages," published in 1801. John Arrowsmith compiled many maps for the Imperial Government including the important ones showing the discoveries of the British (Government) explorers, Captain Palliser and his colleagues, between 1857 and 1860. Also noteworthy for names is the map prepared by David Thompson, of the North West Company, in 1813 and 1814.

Attention may be called to one name on Aaron Arrowsmith's map. It is that of Edgemoor creek, known today as rosebud river. Concerning this stream Arrowsmith says "Great quantity of coal in this creek." This is the first published reference to the existence of coal in Alberta, the abundance of which mineral is betokened by such names as Athabasca, Carbonade, Colliery, and Coal Valley. Incidentally, there may be noted the use at this early date of the word creek, the universal name in western Canada today of the streams called brooks in Great Britain.

NEW ALBERTA INDUSTRY

The Dominion Government has granted a charter of incorporation to Nu-foods Limited, a company formed to manufacture an entirely new breakfast food, and other products, embodying new principles in food preparations. This remarkable food was introduced within the last year on the English market by London's greatest baking company, H. W. Nevill Limited, where under the name of Nevill's Breakfast Food it has received a sensational reception.

Mr. R. K. Peck, of Edmonton who has been a Westerner for over 20 years, while with the Canadian National Colonization Department in England last year, secured the manufacturing and selling rights for Canada and the United States. Nu-foods Limited has been formed by prominent Alberta men to take over these rights and to establish an Alberta factory for the manufacture of these products.

Nu-foods is a fully prepared food consisting of an entirely new combination of whole wheat, ruts and fruit juices and certain secret ingredients of special health value hitherto unknown in food preparations, scientifically balanced as to vitamin content.

nourishing and satisfying, having the correct protein, fat and mineral proportions to meet the daily needs of brain and body. The result of years of research by one of England's foremost food specialists it may be said to have finally solved the problem of the complete and perfect food.

Alberta welcomes new industries, especially ones which provide a new outlet for her own products. Her greatest product—wheat—being a large factor in Nu-food, Alberta is the logical place for its production.

With Alberta men, such as Dr. F. S. McCall of Alberta College widely known, H. W. B. Douglas, of the well known Douglas Printing Co., C. M. Tait, an Albertan for over 25 years, and L. B. Howatt of Howatt and Howatt, Barriars, behind the enterprise and with a food-product the value and excellence of which is endorsed by our former Premier Hon. H. W. Greenfield, A. McGavin of McGavin's Limited with their extensive interests from Colorado to Alberta and British Columbia, W. W. Prevey, managing-director of the Edmonton City Dairy and many others, the company's successful promotion is assured. The registered office of Nu-foods Limited is at 219 McLeod Building, Edmonton.

THE SILVER SETTING
FOR THE TABLE

III—Silver in Installments

Few women are fortunate enough to have a complete silver service bequeathed them as a family heirloom, and some to have it given to them as wedding gifts and still others to have it accumulated for them by birthday presents throughout the years from babyhood. But the great majority of women, who are eager to have their dining rooms correctly equipped with sterling silver, find that they must buy it gradually out of the family budget, and to them the most important question is: "Which silver is now essential—what shall I buy first?"

Most household experts agree that a full set of flat tableware is the first and most important requirement. That is, in addition to the usual dinner knives, forks, and spoons, and three sizes of spoons—soup, tea and tablespoons—it is necessary to have salad knives, forks and spoons, after dinner coffee spoons and a cold meat fork and platter knife. Fruit knives and forks, orange spoons, cocktail forks, fish knives and forks and servers of various kinds are also desirable, but these can be delayed in buying of more useful items, meantime making one implement do the work of two. The dessert knives and forks for instance, can be used for the fish course as well as dessert.

The number of each size—bought may be limited or increased according to the habitual scale of entertainment. Some newly married couples whose entertaining is confined to small, intimate dinners among their close friends, can get along quite nicely with six but the usual number bought is eight, and where formal dinners are the rule, nothing less than a dozen would be required.

To use sterling silver ornaments on the table while the flat ware is shabby or inadequate is not considered in good taste, but with it provided for the next addition might well be the decorative centerpiece. Items—four silver candle sticks and a silver flower bowl. If a choice must be made for the time being between the two, the candlesticks should come first. A candelabra containing four candles makes an attractive centerpiece in itself and one woman of our acquaintance uses her husband's golf trophy cup filled with long-stemmed flowers.

Next should come a salt and pepper shakers; a round, flat sandwich plate which can also be used as a bread tray and a compotier or two for small cakes, nuts and bonbons. Then it will be time to consider serving dishes.

Of the wide variety of serving dishes made in silver, a flat, round silver tray is the most indispensable, for its uses are practically unlimited. It makes an excellent vegetable dish, particularly in the corn and asparagus season; it provides a pleasing background for sliced steak with watercress, chops distributed about a central mound of mashed potato, a slice of sole, ice cream in brick form, a sliced pie or cake, or hot rolls in a folded napkin. It can also be used for removing salts and peppers from the table or for serving after-dinner coffee.

After the platter, a triple vegetable dish would be the best investment. Such a dish has three separate compartments for vegetables and saves much time in serving as well as dishwashing. Some of them also have covers which can be converted into extra dishes if needed. With these versatile pieces and a round dish for vegetables or salads or desserts, the silver service for the dining table is practically complete unless a formal equipment of service plates, bread and butter plates and goblets is desired.

WOMEN DRIVERS ARE NOT RECKLESS

Paris is alarmed by the increasing number of women driving automobiles, and there is a growing agitation in favor of revoking women's motor licenses.

There are 6,000 women possessing permits to drive cars in Paris where as some three years ago there were only 800 feminine motorists. The French men claim that the increase in accidents is due to the French women's habit of "running wild."

The truth, however, is that the French men are responsible for the accidents arising from women drivers. Instead of looking where they are going the pedestrians prefer to watch the women at the wheel. The Parisians cannot get accustomed to the idea of the Parisienne driving a car.

A woman driver has just been fined in a Paris court $50.00 for an accident caused to another woman. The feminine motorist was driving her car in the Boulevard Saint-Michel when another woman crossed the road in front of her. Instead of putting on her brakes or turning the wheel the woman driver simply flung up her hands in despair, and the unfortunate pedestrian was so seriously injured that she is only just able to walk. The accident took place two years ago, but French courts seldom hurry their decisions.

Women drivers as a class are careful and law-abiding. I think it must be conceded that the accident statistics indicate that women generally are more careful and law-abiding than men.

The beauty whose high-powered sport model breaks all the city speed laws as well as the bones of unwary pedestrians and whose devastating charms disarm the motorcycle cop and even the stern judge is rarely met with except on the screen. Police departments, chambers of commerce and automobile clubs seem to agree that the hand that rocks the cradle is quite competent at the steering wheel. One thing is certain, the number of men involved in motor accidents greatly exceeds the number of women.

Light and plenty of it, is usually required in searching for visible flaws in any object, but the seventy-inch disk of optical glass recently made at the bureau of standards for the Perkins observatory at Ohio Wesleyan University, was subjected to its most exacting tests in darkness. The reason was that the internal condition of the big piece of glass is revealed by passing beams of light through it and then studying the patterns and colors that result. This can be done satisfactorily only in a dark place.

"THE JAZZ SINGER," starring Al Jolson, is a Warner Bros. Picture. Picturization of this novel. It is based upon the play by Samson Raphaelson.

"It's what Yudelson—that man was here—it's what he told me. Mary he told me things that are making me hate myself," Jack faced about and gazed at Mary with the tragedy of despair written on his features.

"If you'll tell me about it perhaps I can help you," Mary suggested softly.

"I don't think so, Mary. No one can help me now but myself. You—you couldn't understand my—my feelings about this. It's something that's inside me—born in me. Oh, I can't tell you. And I'm fighting it—fighting it. I tell you—God knows why. Yes, I know why! Jack's voice sobbed out his mental agony. 'But—I can't tell you,' his voice dropped; his head bowed.

"Yes, I can understand those things Jack," Mary was watching the boy intently, catching his mood, his feelings. "Tell me some more."

"No I tell you, I can't," Jack spoke roughly. He wanted to talk, but there was something that restrained him—a vague fear of revealing his innermost sentiments to someone who might not understand. "If I told you you'd hate me, too."

"No, Jack, I don't think so—I don't think there's anything that could make me hate you." She stood silent contemplating the boy before her. Another thought came to her mind. She picked at the ostrich plumes on her dress absent. Finally she looked up shyly—a strange attitude for Mary who usually decided what she wanted and then went after it in a direct manner. "Jack," she asked gravely, "did you—when you said you loved me—did you mean it?"

"I'm crazy about you," Jack was startled for a moment at the question. She tried withdrawing her hand un-

"Maybe it's better that you did get me out of your mind," Jack spoke harshly and began viciously modeling a huge, red mouth around his lips. "Maybe it would be better if I got you out of my mind. Yudelson and every thing he said—well, it gave a different slant on things. I can see things now I didn't see before. Oh, I know they were there all right, but they never bothered me. They seemed so far away. But suddenly they've become important. I understand them better."

"You mean—" Mary began.

"I mean the difference between you and me. Don't you see? Yudelson and me—Dillings and you—well, we're pretty far apart. You stand for certain things, and I stand for others. I saw it as soon as I talked to Yudelson. I knew it—but I didn't bother about it that day Dillings—that day—he didn't want to talk to me. It wasn't all just because of you, Mary. He didn't speak—it was me! I didn't belong."

"But I'm not like he is. I'm not like Dillings," Mary defended herself.

"Maybe not, but you're not like me. Oh, I know," he held up his hand in a warning gesture as Mary started to speak. "I know what you think. I'm a rough diamond. You'll take hold of me and polish me and make me like you. Well, you can't! I tell you, you can't. All my life I'm going to be just what I am. And you're going to be just what you are. You can't do it!" Jack buried his head in his arms and sighed brokenly.

"Then why did you say you loved me, Jack," she said slowly.

"For a long time Jack made no answer. Finally he raised his head, and there were tears in his eyes. "Do you really want to know?" his voice came faintly.

"Yes," Mary nodded.

"All right then, I'll tell you," Jack straightened up, his muscles tense, his breath coming quickly. "I'll tell you. Because I couldn't help it. That's why."

"Well, then," Mary questioned.

"But love means marriage, to me," Jack continued, "and marriage means a home and kids. I—I'd like to have a kid like you—a little boy—but I don't want him to be like you. Jack's voice softened, and his tension relaxed for the moment. "My God, I'm crazy about you."

"Jack," Mary moved closer. "would you—would you mind saying that again?" The old hardness came back. "I won't say it again. I've got no right to say it at all." He got up stiffly and went over to the wardrobe, talking over his shoulder. "When Yudelson came and told me—"

But he got no further. Mary ran and stood in front of him, blocking his way. "Jack," she said, "come here. She led him back to his chair and sat down beside him. "Now, listen. We won't talk about it any more. Let's just talk about ourselves—about you and me." She took his hand tenderly.

"I can't forget, Mary. I can't forget what Yudelson said," Jack moaned. He told me my father is sick. Tonight is the eve of the Day of Atonement. He can't understand what that means, Mary, to my people. It's the most solemn, the most holy day of a Jewish year. It's the great day of every Cantor's life—it's the day when he becomes the mouthpiece of the congregation. He takes to God—he talks to God not for himself, but for all those people come to worship in the synagogue. He asks for atonement for them. It is he—he who brings to God the burden of their sins. Can you understand?"

"Yes, Jack, I know," Mary nodded.

"My father is a Cantor. For five generations the Rabinowitzs have been Cantors. For five generations they have called to God for the people of their synagogue. The name Rabinowitz is like a trade mark on Orchard Street. All these years my father has sung for his people. Now, my father is sick. For the first time in five generations no Rabinowitz will sing the 'Kol Nidre' on the eve of the day of Atonement. My mother sent Yudelson to ask me to come and sing in my father's place. There is no other Rabinowitz to sing."

"And what did you tell Mr Yudelson Jack?"

"What could I tell him? Jack shrugged his shoulders helplessly; he stared at the floor. "Tonight's our opening. Just as I step out on the stage tonight to do a black-face jazz song the most important part of the services will be starting."

And so.

"So I had to tell him 'No' I had to send my mother word that not for father, mother, religion or race, would I miss this opening."

"I'm glad of that," Glad! How can you say that? 'Oh don't you see dear there's only one thing you must think of and that is your work. It's the most important thing you have."

"I've tried hard to feel that way. Mary—don't think I haven't. Listen this is something I never told anybody before Jack began his confession. 'Some times when I'm alone—and I'm alone an awful lot, more than you think—the old songs from the Synagogue begin walling in my ears. I—can't get away from them. Honestly I can hear them sounding as they used to sound when I was a little boy down on Orchard Street—and they run around through my head until I'm almost crazy—over and over again. And then sometimes I—I cry and sometimes I—I do you understand Mary?"

"Yes," she nodded.

"You know back there on the road in those hall bedrooms Jack shuddered. 'I used to get down on my knees and talk to God in Hebrew. I—I bawled him out—because he made me into me half a Cantor—half a Cantor and half a bum. Oh don't you see if I was all bum I wouldn't care—what does a bum care anyhow. But I'm not. I'm part Cantor. But if I was all Cantor I would be happy."

"Do you think so?" Mary asked.

"Yes I think I would," Jack answered half defiantly.

"Well why didn't you go with Yudel son then? Mary was leading up to her arguments with all the wariness of a Philadelphia lawyer.

"Why?" Jack started at the girl beside him. "You know why? It's Broadway! It gets in your blood—gets under your skin. God! I get a thrill just walking up and down the street at night. The light—all the people—the movement—the white, glittering brightness of it—the names all over the theatres—the crowds—and knowing I'm a part of it—I belong—I'm here! Honest sometimes I just stand still and stare and feel the mobs pushing past me. It's—it's sort of an America to me I love it! I can't explain—but—"

"You don't have to tell Jack," Mary nodded. "I know what you mean I feel it too—that same way. I can realize what you're going through."

"Yes, maybe about the theatre—and Broadway. But not that other side of my life—the East Side—my father and mother. Why my father is sick now because of me."

"That's silly," Mary turned quickly trying to divert the boy's mind from this channel.

"No—no it's not," he returned. "Only two weeks ago he told me he never wanted to see me again. He's been sick ever since then. Sick—because he's eating his heart out on account of me—and what I'm doing."

"Then what are you going to do about it? Go down on the East Side and be a cantor for the rest of your life? There was no bitterness, no scorn in Mary's question; only a tenderness and sympathy that struck an answering chord in Jack's heart."

"No—o—o" he hesitated turning the matter over and over in his mind. It was true he felt, that in one sense he could never return to the Ghetto and be happy. All his life the call of Broadway would be ringing in his ears and the white lights would be blinding his eyes. Just as during those years on the road the chants and prayers of the Synagogue kept calling him. If only he could be just one thing or the other. But he felt that he was neither. He was only part of each."

"Do you care about your career on the stage?" Mary asked very gently after awhile.

"It's the only thing in the world that I do care about," Jack burst out passionately.

"The only thing?"

"Yes the only thing."

Even more than me Jack? Mary weighed her words carefully.

"More than you," Jack nodded slowly. "Jack! Oh my dear, my dear! That what I've been trying to find out. Now can't you understand? Mary's words came tumbling out swiftly; she had gained her point. "Don't you see Jack I don't want myself I love you Jack I love you—out I love you so much that I want you to do—to be—exactly what you want. Nothing must stand in your way! Don't you understand Jack—don't you?"

She was standing before Jack now her arms outstretched pleading; the tears glistening in her blue eyes. Jack rose to his feet unsteadily; he caught the girl in his arms.

"Mary," he whispered, "Mary darling. You're a little bit of all right released Mary and called 'Come in!' Gene thrust his head into the room. "Time for your number Mr Robin!" he announced.

"I'm ready I'll be right out!" Jack hastily added a few touches of make up to his face. The sound of ragtime music floated into the dressing room.

All right Mr Robin! Gene closed the door.

"Hear that music! That's that new Charleston!" Jack turned from his mirror, humming, and began pulling on his white cotton gloves. "That's a real steal from something. It's a good tune. You know Mary, he took a final look at himself in the mirror. "If people only knew what a cinch it was to black up like this they'd all be doing it. I feel like that bird now—what's his name? You know, the one that sticks his head in the sand and thinks it's hidden?"

Oh the ostrich! Mary laughed.

"Yeah that's it! Well I just feel like that in his make-up. It would be a good job—only I have to buy so much soap."

A second knock at the door. This time Jimmy, the doorman entered.

"Say Mr Robin there's a man out there, wants to see you—the same one that was here before today," Jim announced.

"It's Yudelson! Jack's face fell; the brightness left his smile. Tell him he will have to wait until after this number. Jim.

"There's a lady with him Mr Robin he continued."

"A lady? Who?"

"I'll leave Jack," Mary stared towards the door. Jack caught her arm.

"No please Mary stay here I'll see who it is. He turned to follow Jimmy and as he reached the doorway he came face to face with his mother.

CHAPTER XVII

Jack stared at his mother in amazement. Almost exhausted by the trip to which she was unaccustomed; Mrs Rabinowitz stood trembling before this strange person whom she could scarcely recognize beneath the heavy black make-up. She peered up at her son in astonishment and almost fear. But now Jack was holding out his arms to her.

"Mama!" he cried clasping her hand and leaning forward to kiss her. But he remembered his make-up and stepped back, pulling her into the dressing room with him.

"Jackie! This ain't you!" Mrs Rabinowitz was holding the boy at arms length inspecting him in a puzzled manner.

Yudelson in his turn was almost bewildered as Mrs Rabinowitz. He stared at Jack uncertainly and shook his head.

"It talks like Jackie but it looks like a nigger!" he exclaimed finally.

"Yudelson didn't you explain to me means? Jack turned to the Jeweler his face drawn in an agony of despair.

"Sure I told her everything, the same way you told me Jackie, but she made me I should bring her here," Yudelson looked a little timorously at Jack uncertain as to whether he had done the right thing. But Mrs Rabinowitz was waving his words aside.

"Jackie I got to tell you from your papa," she spoke in low tones. "that sounded almost like a wailing chant Jackie your pap is sick. He is laying in bed. His face is so white—he was away almost falling. Jack caught her arm.

"Please mama!" he pulled a chair nearer and gently pushed her into it. "Sit down Mama, sit down. He placed a chair opposite to her and sank down his breath coming fast and hard. He had completely forgotten Mary, who moved unobtrusively to a corner in the room where she could watch Jack's face."

"Your papa is sick Jackie All the time he is talking about you. His eyes is open like a baby's eyes. His face is white like a yalest candle. All the time he talks from his son. He was saying this day 'Sara' he said—his voice was so low I could hardly hear him—he said, 'maybe Jackie will come tonight and sing in the Synagogue."

WEST'S NEW PLAYGROUND

Prince Albert National Park, Saskatchewan, which will be opened officially on August 10, bequeaths to the people of Western Canada one of the finest playgrounds on the continent. Its borders enclose 1,400 square miles of forest, lake and stream, where all is to be found that goes to make a holiday memorable.

Prince Albert National Park lies about 80 miles north of the city of Prince Albert, which is served by many lines of the Canadian National Railways. A fine motor road runs from the city to Lake Waskesiu Lake, in the heart of the park, where the opening ceremonies will be performed by the Rt. Hon. W. L. M. King, Prime Minister of Canada. Premier King represents Prince Albert in the House of Commons, and his constituents are presenting him with a cottage on this lake.

In addition to the Prime Minister, many other men notable in the public life of Canada, will attend. The programme will extend over a period of two days and special housing accommodation has been arranged by the committee.

The photograph shows a view on Kingstons Lake, a typical body of water in this new and beautiful playground of the nation.—Photograph by Canadian National Railways.

EVERY TWO MINUTES OF EVERY BUSINESS DAY... SOMEONE IN CANADA BUYS A NEW GENERAL MOTORS CAR

SINCE the days of Confederation, General Motors of Canada Limited has been supplying Canada with transportation. Each year as requirements have multiplied, the scope of General Motors service has widened... the quality of General Motors cars has steadily improved. Each year more Canadians have looked to General Motors for better automobiles, until now, every two minutes of every business day, someone in Canada buys a new General Motors car. These cars are bought by people you know... by people like yourself... for the very reasons which would guide you in the choice of a car.

They are bought because they are the product of the most progressive organization in the world's most progressive industry... because they reflect the General Motors policy of constant advancement... because they are better cars...

They represent the latest developments of the world's leading automotive research laboratory, offering these developments to the public as soon as they become available. They are proved in advance, at the expense of General Motors, not the public. They are better cars because they are Canadian cars. And they embody greater value because of General Motors money-saving methods of quantity buying and volume production. This popularity of General Motors cars has more than a passing interest for the General Motors car buyer... for a general Motors car offers increased demand to reduce production cost and to offer still more outstanding value.
